Insurance: We will bill your insurance for our services. We will assist you but you are responsible to check with your insurance company regarding your coverage and to track this coverage as treatment progresses. Some things to keep in mind are: Are you currently covered? Am I a provider whose services are paid under this plan? What is your annual deductible? What is the percent of coverage? What is the maximum benefit for outpatient mental health coverage? Remember: You are responsible for bills whether insurance pays or not.

INITIAL HERE _____(Patient/and or responsible party)

Fees: My rates are as follows: $250 for an initial evaluation and $175 for subsequent 50-minute sessions, $175 an hour for testing and assessments, and $100 an hour for other professional services (report writing, telephone conversations, meetings/consultations with other professionals). HIPAA NOTICE OF PRIVACY PRACTICES

This notice describes how medical and psychological information about you may be used and disclosed, and how you can get access to this information.

Cascade Center for Wellness (CCW) is required by federal and state law to maintain the privacy of your health information, and to provide you with a description of our privacy practices. This notice will tell you how your provider will use medical information here in this office, when and how it can be shared with other professionals and organizations, and how you can see it. If you have any questions, your provider will be happy to help you understand our procedures and your rights.

I. What Is Protected Health Information?

Protected health information (PHI) is information in your treatment record that identifies you (i.e. name, date of birth, etc.). Each time you visit CCW information is collected about you and your health, and recorded in your health care records. In this office, PHI is likely to include information such as your personal history, reasons for coming to treatment, your diagnoses and treatment plan, progress notes for each session, records or reports from other providers or agencies who have treated or evaluated you, psychological test scores, information about medications you took or are taking, and billing and insurance information.

II. Privacy And The Laws About Privacy

Your provider is required to tell you about privacy because of a federal law, the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA). HIPAA requires your provider to protect the privacy of your PHI, to tell you about your rights and your provider's legal duties in regard to your PHI, and to tell you about our privacy practices. Your provider is obligated to obey the rules described in the most current version of this notice.

III. Uses And Disclosures With Your Consent

Your provider may use and disclose PHI for purposes of treatment, payment, and health care operations. "Use" applies to activities within CCW office that help to manage the services we provide. "Disclosure" applies to activities outside the office, such as releasing, transferring, or providing access to other individuals or organizations. "Consent" refers to your agreement to the policies described in this document, which you indicate through your signature on the "Acknowledgment of Receipt of Notice of Privacy Practices."

Treatment. Your provider will use your medical information to provide you with psychological treatments or services such as individual, family, or group therapy; psychological or educational testing; treatment planning; or measuring the benefits of services provided. Your provider may share your PHI with others who provide treatment to you, such as your physician, or if/when your provider refers you to other healthcare professionals. Your provider may also receive PHI from other healthcare professionals involved in your care, which will go into your records here.

Payment. Your provider may use your information to bill you, your insurance, or others, so that your provider can be paid for the treatments provided to you. Your provider may contact your insurance company to find out what services your insurance plan covers. Your provider may have to tell your insurance company about your diagnoses, the treatments you have received, treatment plan, and your progress in order to be reimbursed for services.

Healthcare operations. Your provider may use your PHI for activities related to the performance, operation, and maintenance of the practice, such as quality assessments, business-related matters such as audits and administrative services, and for case management or care coordination. For example, your provider may hire a billing service to submit bills to insurance companies. Under the law, providers of such services are called “business associates.” To protect your privacy, any business associates will agree in their contract with CCW to safeguard your information, and they will receive only the PHI required to do their job. Your provider may also use and disclose PHI to schedule appointments with you or to provide you with appointment reminders

IV. Uses And Disclosures That Require Your Authorization

Your provider may use and disclose your PHI for purposes outside of treatment, payment, and healthcare operations with your written authorization. An authorization is specific, written permission above and beyond general consent. When information is disclosed for purposes other than treatment, payment, and healthcare operations, such as consulting with a child’s teacher, Your provider will obtain an authorization form from you before releasing the information. You may cancel your authorization in writing at any time. Your provider would then stop using or disclosing your information for that purpose. Of course, your provider cannot take back any information already disclosed or used with your permission.

V. Uses And Disclosures That Do Not Require Your Consent Or Authorization

Your provider may use or disclose your PHI without your consent or authorization under circumstances such as those described below. If any of these situations arise, your provider will attempt to discuss it with you before taking action, and will disclose only necessary information.

Abuse or neglect: If your provider has reasonable cause to believe that a child, elderly person, or other vulnerable adult has been abused, exploited, or neglected, (s)he is required to report their suspicion to law enforcement and to the Department of Social and Health Services.

Legal proceedings: If you are involved in a lawsuit or legal proceeding, and your provider receives a subpoena, discovery request, or other lawful process, they may have to release PHI.

Law enforcement: Your provider may be required to release information to law enforcement officials.

Government oversight: As a health care provider, your provider is subject to oversight by federal and state agencies. If a government agency makes a lawful request, your provider may be required to disclose PHI as part of audits, inspections, or investigations.

Veterans and military personnel: Your provider may be required to disclose PHI of current or past members of the armed forces, security, or intelligence services to government authorities, or to benefit programs relating to eligibility and enrollment.

Worker’s compensation: Your provider may be required to disclose PHI to workers’ compensation and disability programs to the extent necessary to comply with laws relating to programs that provide benefits for work-related injuries or illness.

Threat to safety: Your provider may use or disclose PHI if they believe it is necessary to prevent a serious threat to you or someone else.

Medical emergency: In the event of a medical emergency or involuntary commitment, your provider may disclose PHI to facilitate treatment.

Healthcare providers: As a result of state regulations adopted by the Washington State Department of Health, your provider is required to report themselves or another healthcare provider in the event of a final determination of unprofessional conduct, a determination of risk to patient safety due to a mental or physical condition, or if your provider has actual knowledge of unprofessional conduct by another licensed provider. Note: If you yourself are a healthcare provider, and we believe that your behavior is a clear and present danger to your patients or clients, we are also required to report you.

VI. Your Rights Concerning Your Health Information

HIPAA provides you with the following rights regarding your clinical record and disclosures of your PHI. Requests must be made in writing.

Right to request restrictions: You have the right to ask your provider to limit the use and disclosure of your PHI. Although your provider is not required to agree to a restriction you request, if they do agree, they will honor the request except when it is against the law, an emergency situation, or when the information is necessary to treat you.

Right to confidential communications: You have the right to ask your provider to communicate with you about your health and related issues in a particular way, or at a certain place that is more private for you. For example, you can ask your provider to call you to schedule appointments at home, rather than at work, or to send mail to someplace other than your home address.

Right to inspect records: You have the right to look at the health information your provider has about you, such as your medical and billing records. You can get a copy of these records, but your provider may charge you for postage and a state-determined rate for copying. Your provider may deny access to PHI under some circumstances. If they do so, they will explain any options you may have for a review of that decision.

Right to amend: If you believe that the information in your records is incorrect or missing something important, you can ask your provider to make additions to your records to correct the situation. This request must be made in writing, and include the reasons you want to make the changes. If your provider does not approve your request, they will tell you why, and explain any right you may have to file a written statement of disagreement.

Right to a paper copy: You have the right to a copy of this notice.

Right to an accounting: You have the right to request an accounting of disclosures of PHI to which you did not consent or provide authorization. Your provider is not required to account for disclosures of PHI for treatment, payment, or healthcare operations, or for which you provided consent or authorization.

VII. If You Have Questions Or Problems

If you need more information or have questions about the privacy practices described above, please speak to your provider. If you have concerns about how your PHI has been handled, or if you believe your privacy rights have been violated, please contact your provider immediately so they can address your concerns together with you. If this does not resolve your concerns, you have the right to file a complaint with the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Your provider can provide you with the form for the complaint. Filing a complaint will not limit your care here, and your provider will not take any actions against you if you complain.

Complaints may be filed with:
